

Patent Prosecution

The patent prosecution team at Williams Mullen includes highly-skilled attorneys with technical degrees and, in some instances, industry experience, all of whom are admitted to practice before the United States Patent and Trademark Office. We prosecute domestic and international patents related to a broad range of high-tech innovations all over the world. The patent group's strength comes from the diverse skill set of its members. We routinely conduct novelty, validity and patentability assessments, design-around and product clearance analyses, invalidity and infringement investigations and intellectual property audits for due diligence and asset management programs.

As part of our approach to portfolio management, we routinely provide a number of services to our clients that help manage risk and optimize value. These services include targeted patent watch services, legal updates, portfolio reviews for patent term extensions based on changes in the law, reissue applications to ensure claim validity and filtering out patents that no longer meet the client's business goals and value criteria.

Our intellectual property group also has a robust litigation and post-grant review practice. With experience as counsel to government agencies, businesses and universities, our patent attorneys offer clients a perspective focused on solving real-world business issues and legal challenges.
