Co-Authored by Michael E. Burke, Kenneth A. Cutshaw and Christopher A. Wagner

The growth in China far surpasses that of any other country in the world and has been the product of the most accelerated growth in the last two decades. As is true with all emerging capital markets, the law and regulations are being developed and adopted quickly and are changing regularly to conform to the emerging markets. The authors of this book provide user-friendly guidance on entering the ever-developing Chinese market. Chapters are written to provide practical insight into the methods of doing business in China either by operating in the country or by contracting with Chinese enterprises.
