

Federal Carbon Market Governance: So Who's Really (Going To Be) in Charge Here?

09.01.2009

ABA SEER Energy Committees Newsletter
Article

09. 2009

It is more likely than not that the United States will enact some form of federal cap-and-trade legislation for greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions in the next few years. The red pill/blue pill decision-making phase seems to have concluded...we're going down the rabbit hole, setting the country on a path to innovation, or taking our blinders off to the matrix—pick your metaphor.

click below to continue reading the article...

ABA SEER Energy Committees Newsletter

Related People

Related Services

- Energy