

Property Tax in North Carolina: The Discovery of Unlisted and Underlisted Property

12.10.2014

Almost nothing causes more consternation in the property tax process than the receipt by a taxpayer of a “notice of discovery” issued by a county assessor. The increasing use by counties of contract auditors – some of whom work on a contingency fee driven by the size of the discovery – has not lessened taxpayer anxiety over the receipt of a notice asserting that it has failed to list, or that it underlisted, its assets for property tax assessment.

Image not found file:///var/www/html/FCWSite/Img/icon_downloadfile.gif

Property Tax in North Carolina: The Discovery of Unlisted and Underlisted Property

Related People

- Charles B. Neely, Jr. – 919.981.4007 – cneely@williamsmullen.com

Related Services

- State & Local Tax
- Tax Law