

OSHA Unveils New Poster Aimed at Reducing Workplace Exposure to the Coronavirus

04.08.2020

The U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has issued a new poster listing steps all workplaces can take to reduce the risk of exposure to coronavirus. The new poster is available for download in English, or Spanish. There's nothing novel listed among OSHA's "top 10" infection prevention measures. Finally, OSHA does not require employers to post this informational piece in their workplaces. Employers, however, may use the poster to reinforce worker compliance with the safety practices which should already have been adopted.
